

FROM LONDON, the singing group SOUNDS INCORPORATED meet for an evening of relaxation with the fabulous San Francisco group, the BEAU BRUMMELS. The two pretty gris are fars who joined the meeting of Anglo-American friendships recently at a Hollywood nitery, KRUA BEAT columnist Derek Taylor described the meeting of the two groups as humorous, heapy, and profitable. The Beau Brunness are quite by accident with the English group and introduced themselves while at the club.

Derek Taylor Reports

Starr is going to be a father. This was con-soon as it happens — a couple of days ago. I am sure everyone in the world who cares about the Beatles will be happy for Ringo and Mauroen

New Group

More exciting news from Eng-land — though an a different level. A wonderful new group called Unit Four Plus Two have crashed on the scene with somethe early Liverpool bombshells.

They have a song called "Con-crete and Clay" which is a huge hit in England and will most certainly claw its way up the charts here.

This was a much needed inection of new vitality in Engand where fans were growing a little tired of old faces

Jostling

A friend of mine in London — Don Short, show-business re-porter of the Daily Mirror phoned me today to say that the Yardbirds and Cliff Richward were also jostling for the top of the charts

The Yardbirds are a very strong London group and play with the Beatles on their Christnas Show. I don't think they have made too much noise ove here yet. Nor has Cliff Richard, the most consistent British solo star and - with Adam Faith the only pop star to make the transition from the 1950s to the 1960s successfully He come something like $6,000 a week and was only unseated as top British rave when the Beatles finally made it in 1963. Herman's Love Sad news for Herman fans. The London Daily Express quotes girl singer Twinkle sayg, "You can say Herman and I are in love.

Twinkle has the fashionable long blonde hair, tiny face, and round, round eyes of the Mod Londoner, and made an over-night name for herself with a song called "Terry," which was about a boy who was killed on his motorcycle. A morbid, attractive song which gained the distinction of being banned from

So Ringo several television shows.

However, one of my London friends says the Twinkle/Herman romance may be brief. Both are very young

Cilla Black finally made it to Los Angeles. She flew in from New York after the Ed Sullivan Show with her road manager, Bobby Willis, and Brian Ep-stein's personal assistant, Wendy Hange

Cilla was, I thought, pretty good on the Sullivan show though she and Willis were unhappy that she was announced suddenly and without warning before the dancers were ready and before the scenery was properly in place

Why Here?

They were in Hollywood for "Shindig." Wendy Hanson, who had worked for the late President Kennedy and several senior American executives, became Epstein's assistant late last year. She is tall handsome, blonde, very charming and efficient. Paul Revere and the Raiders are due back in town any day now to promote their new record "Sometimes." The flip side is a new arrangement of "Oopoopado." The disc is expected to sell well — deservedly because the group is very experienced and take their music seriously.

New Task

I became a manager this week - for the first time. I signed a great young singer called Thomas ames Turner, 21, with the most beautiful voice. He was Dallas born but has lived in California for most of his life.

Los Angeles, California LET'S TALK WITH PA

(Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a series of Beatle. interviews by Dave Hull and Derek Tavlor. (Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a series of Beatle, interviews by Dave Hull and Derek Taylor, who talked to John, Paul, George and Ringo at length while they were in the Bahamas filming scenes for their second movie originally broadcast over KRLA. In this interview Derek and Dave are talking with Paul Mc-Cartney while sitting on the beach at Nassau.)

DEREK: Paul McCartney just came down on the sands. He probably looks the smartest of the three this morning. He's got on grey trousers, blue light blue jacket, blue checked shirt, deep tan film makeup, and I think his feet are bare. Good morning, anyway, Paul. PAUL: 'Morning, Derek.

DEREK: How have you been? PAUL: Well, you know, Derek, what it's like . . . fine, dandy, everything's going great. You knew I'd say that, didn't you? DEREK: Well, you see, I just sort of let you walk through the opening, because I don't need to tell you what to say, and never did. Or did I. PAUL: No. Of course you didn't,

DEREK: How many people are in this film who were in the last film besides you, Paul, besides the Beatles?

PAUL: AUL: Victor Spinetti was in the last one — he was the TV producer - and this time he's one of the baddies. Dick Les ter and Walter Shenson, really, I think that's all. The actors are all different except for Victor Spinetti.

DEREK: I don't know whether the plot has ever been published so I don't want to go into tremendous detail because it would spoil things, but could you just give me a brief run-down what it's all about?

ring for some reason or other, so that he can be sacrificed or something. It's very funny. And they keep trying to get ahold of him and get the ring and we keep trying to rescale him, etc., etc., and it goes on. It fills ninety minutes worth of screen time.

DEREK: There are a lot of new songs. I think in "Hard Day's Night" there were six or seven brand new ones. How many in this one? AUL: There'll be about the - same -- six or seven new ones actual fact I don't think we'll stick in old ones like we did in "Hard Day's Night." I think it's better if we got completely new songs.

- DEREK: You mean you wouldn't use any old ones as background music? PAUL: I don't think so. We
- We've remight as well . corded eleven new songs
- DEREK: Those are actually already on tape are they? PAUL: Yes, and they could all be done for the film. What Dick Lester is going to do is pick the best seven—the seven he likes best—or that fit best in the film. And if we do need any background music we'll put the others in. REK. Goorge Martin, prosume

Ten Cents

- ESE. George Murtin, presuma-ably, is cooperating com-pletely on the score and the background and that sort of thing, is he? AUL: Nobody's got round to the score yet because we've only just done the numbers and he'd have to write the score around the numbers score around the numbers. Anyway we've only just started filming so there's no particular panic for that.
- DEREK: No. I think when I last saw you when I left you in December, there were no songs at all. Is that right? PATIT Right.
- DEREK: You must have worked pretty hard since then. PAUL: No, not really. We just
- sort of did a couple a week. know I wrote a couple on holiday and John wrote a cou ple on holiday too. And we did a lot together. So when we go back we have quite a bit ready. We have about fourteen songs in all to record. We've done about eleven of them. There are still one or two that we haven't done actually. Might do those when we get back to England.
- DEREK: It's widely known now that a lot of the songs which bear both your names were in fact, written by one or the in fact, written by one or the other on your own, and then arranged jointly later. Of the songs in the film, are sev-eral of them single records or have you written them alone or are they joint endeavors this time?
- PAUL: Well, there are a couple of single efforts and couple of joint. What we normally do, HOPE ON PAGE 2 though, even if I go away and write a song ... normally the reason I write it on my own or John writes it on his own is 'cause it's daft to sit around waiting for the other one to come up and finish the song. If you happen to be off on your own you might as well finish it off yourself, cause we don't have words and music, as you well know. So what normally does happen is that if I get stuck on the middle of a song, I'll give in, knowing that when I see John he'll finish it off for me. And it'll be a fifty-fifty thing. That's what happens with a lot of them. That's what happened even with a lot of the single efforts. I just sort of forget about the middle eight until I see John, and then say "I need a middle eight for this one," and he says, "Right, okay." And it works.

- DEREK: I think "I Saw Her Standing There" was written almost entirely by you, but John put in one word which sort of made it right. PAUL: Yeah, that's it. What - happened was, he took out one word which would have made it very wrong. The first two lines ... I did it going home in a car one night, so I wasn't it. The first two lines, originally, were "she was just sev enteen and she'd never been a beauty queen," which just sounded like it rhymed to me.

sounded nee it rhymed to me. DEREK: How'd you happen to write a line like this? PAUL: You try writing a song going along in a car and, I don't know, you sout of think of things like that. Anyway, when I saw it the next day and played it through to John, realized it was a useless line. So we sat down and tried to of another line which rhymed with "seventeen" and meant something. We eventually got "you know what I which means nothing mean, completely nothing at all DEREK: On the other hand it's not an embarrassing line like 'beauty queen" would have been.

PAUL: No, but on the other hand it could have been a deep and sort of involved line you know what I mean you know, seventeen-year-old girls ... you know . . . great You see. It's just a Liverpool ession, as it were, De DEREK: That's what I thought, a Liverpool expression. A lot of your songs could actually be conversation pieces in Liver-pool - "She Loves You," "I

Clare Davies and Janice Alford 4 Updale Close Potters Bar Middlesex, England

Saw Her Yesterday," and that sort of thing. PAUL: Yeah. Actually, there was some fellow in England who was thinking of doing that, speaking our songs just to use them. Called John Junkin. Do you know him? He was in our last film, played "Shake," the road manager. DEREK: Yes.

PAUL: He wanted to do a record of something like "She Loves Yeah . Yeh?" etc. DEREK: Probably work, I think. PAUL: It might do, yeah.

DEREK: But it seems to me it might be the only thing left to do now . . . an exploitation of Beatle material. I would like to say that during the time I was with the Beatles I never ever saw any profes-sional jealousy. Paul came along with a song that be-came the "A" side, and John had one which he thought might have been the "A." There was never any sort of nonsense or back-biting or came up with "She's A Woman" and thought it was an "A" and other people did, and then John came up with "I Feel Fine" so Paul's "She's A Woman' went on the back Did you mind?

PAUL: I didn't mind at all. In fact, I wouldn't have liked it to have been an "A." As it happened afterwards, it was quite well received. A lot of people just thought I was singing too high. They thought I'd picked the wrong key. DEREK: Probably less commercial anyway. AUL: Yes, might have been, I don't know. You get those people who come up and say, Why did you sing it that high, you should have done it in a lower key," because it sounded like I was screeching it. But, ladies and gentlemen that was on purpose, honest. It wasn't a mistake, honest.

DEREK: Maureen Cleve, who is a London journalist, had a very good line in a piece on this disc when she wrote, "How can a dirty great voice like that come out of such a face?" I think it's often surprising that with a face like yours ... sort of angelic face . the face of a delinquent choir boy, someonce once said . . . that you have actually got many voices. One of them you might call a "col-ored voice." That was your "colored voice" in "She's A Woman," wasn't it? PAUL: No, it was my green

DEREK: What would you call your anti-lovely voice? PAUL: I don't know . . . soppy,

DEREK: Away from song-writing

since you're now actors . . . PAUL: Me James Cagney one, isn't it?

DEREK: Yeah, he's playing James Cagney face, which isn't recording too well on tape. Could you give us a James Cagney line? PAUL: No, I'm afraid not.

DEREK: Would you do us a quick imitation of any of your friends?

PAUL Any of my friends? I couldn't, really, I'm not very od on these imitations.

DEREK: You don't like being prompted to do it. PAUL: You're right.

DEREK: I see Bob Freeman over there.

PAUL: He's done the cover for our latest album in England. I don't think it was in America

DEREK: No, it wasn't, but the disc is on sale in America.

PAUL: But they changed the DEREK: They did. But the English disc has another name, "Beatles For Sale," and has a bonus of two numbers over and above the American album.

PAUL: That's it, you see, better value. Buy Britain, folks, buy

DEREK: When you come back to America, you know you're going to Hollywood again Yes, see you then DEREK: Well, I'll see you there if not before. Thank you very much, indeed, Paul, and it's nice to see you again. PAUL: Okay, Derek, see you

DAVE: Hi, Paul.

Hi Dave

DAVE: The last time you were in Hollywood you appeared to be a little put out with me because of the addresses I gave out. PAUL: I was, ves.

DAVE: Are you still put out with me? PAUL: Well for that, yes.

DAVE: You still think I'm a rotten guy, do you? PAUL: No, I just didn't like the idea of your giving every-body's addresses out just because if you're trying to keep quiet ever - not that I particularly am - but if I was trying to keep quiet and you were giving the addresses out it would be a big drag, you DAVE: Really the addresses I gave were your folks' addresses, as you know, and not your hotel. PAUL: That doesn't matter at all.

I don't mind. It's just that I know a lot of people who have sort of been cursing you be cause it's caused them a lot inconvenience. It's okay, and it's good news for you to give our addresses out, I agree. I would probably do the same thing if I were in the same position. But if you were my position and other peopl the same of me giving out addresses as I thought then. Actually it doesn't worry me too much. I don't hate you anything because of it. In fact we're quite good friends. DAVE: What about your getting around the islands here. Have you been other places be-sides Nassau? Have you been jumping around the island? PAUL: Well, we've been ou here on Paradise Island and to Nassau and a little bit around the island on location with the film. We've been out to nightclubs in the town. It's pretty quiet here, you know. Nobody seems to bother you. There doesn't seem to be an awful lot of people actually on the island. It's a quiet place. So we're having it pretty easy.

DAVE: The people who do both-er you, are they mostly Europeans or Americans?

PAUL: Mostly Americans, really. I think mainly because the main lot of the tourists here are American. The natives here don't bother much. They just sort of go out and . . . "Ho-ho, the Beatles." And they have big grins on their faces. That's good enough for them. But the cople ask you for autographs I think mainly are Americans or Americans living here or American tourists.

DAVE: Do you have many prob lems getting around when you're on vacation? PAUL: It depends on where you go. Last time I went to Tu-nisia and had no problems at all. It's so quiet here, really.

As I was telling Derek before about the phones. They're so cut off in Tunisia it's ridiculous. I mean a man from a newspaper came around when we were in Tunisia and spoke to me and everything, and it didn't get'back to England. It was ridiculous,

- DAVE: You mean nothing of the material got out? PAUL: No, because all the lines
- were so bad. I couldn't speak to anyone in England. It was a fluke if you managed to get a good line to England.

DAVE: Isn't it a pleasure, though, if you're on vaca-tion? You get away ...

PAUL: Yeah, right, it was this time. I enjoyed it. Went away for two weeks, lazed around, went to the little soukhs. which are little market places the Tunisian's have. In fact, this very pair of sandals was bought for one dinar. It's about fifteen shillings in English -I think about two dollars.

DAVE: When you go on vaca-tion do you turn into a tourist like most tourists do?

PAUL: Yes, mainly. Like Tunisia did. Sometimes you don't. You go to somewhere where it's not so quiet, then you don't really get a chance to go out and turn into a tourist. I was completely tourist with a movie camera and snapshots.

- DAVE: When you are returning to Hollywood - of course the itinerary hasn't been planned vet, meticulously - but I understand you're going to do a couple of shows in Hollywood, then you're going to San Francisco, then you're returning to Hollywood for a couple of days' vacation. Is that true? PAUL: I think that's true. I'm
- not really sure about the itin-erary myself yet, but that sounds like it.
- DAVE: Were you interested in seeing Hollywood? Remember last time you didn't get a chance to see much. You were locked in the house and really didn't AUL: Well that was PAUL:

enough really. We saw Bel-Air and we stayed in a nice house and we stayed in a nice house in Bel-Air and we enjoyed ourselves. That was good enough. That was really all I wanted. Like when I went to New York we saw skyscrapers. That's about all we wanted to see in New York. In Holly-wood we wanted to be in Bel-Air for a bit.

- DAVE: When you returned, Derek told me you were im-pressed with the perform-ance in Hollywood and also that you were impressed with one other place, and that was the Red Rock Stadium in Denver. Is that correct?
- PAUL: Yes, actually we were impressed with a lot more places than that. But we enjoved Red Rock. It was funny playing there because it's the mile-high city and the air is different a mile high. It's much harder to breathe. We felt sort of drunk or something on stage. We were sort of falling

DAVE: Because of the oxygen, I suppose? PAUL: Somebody said it was

- PAUL: We met Burt Lancaster last time and he's a great fel-low . . . marvelous bloke, and his kids great.
- DAVE: What about some of the others . . . of course during the lawn party in Beverly Hills you met a lot of them But are you looking forward particularly to being with some particular star, this time around?

PAUL: Well, I'll tell you . . . I'm just like anybody else. When I meet any stars . haven't changed that much that it doesn't impress me. I always say "Great." you know, seeing them in the movies or "I saw him on television." But I'm always impressed. So it doesn't matter, really, who I DAVE: We're on the air at this time, broadcasting to Hollywood. Is there anything par-ticularly you can think of to say to the fans - the millions - of fans in Hollywood and Los Angeles and Southern Cali-fornia? PAUL: All I can say is sounds corny-but just thanks for being nice last time and wanting to come and see us. Because it still knocks me out if people want to come and see us. It's great. I don't think anyone can get that blase that they don't care who comes to see them. So I just like to say thanks to everybody and

 - everybody who looked after us while we were there and to people like Burt Lancaster who invited us over to his house. We had a great evening. In fact, to everybody in Hollywood who came to see us or who met us at one time or another. Even the people who didn't meet us who bought our records. Great.

DAVE: I want to thank you, too, Paul, for taking a moment out to talk with us.

PAUL: Okay, Dave.

On The Beat

Ed Sullivan is really the grown. In about a month's span, he will have had Petula Clark, Bobby Vinton, Little Anthony and the Imperials, Cilla Black and Freddle and the Dreamers on his Sunday night show. This summer he will present the Beatles not only at Shea Statium to a memortal authence of 00,000, his TV show in September. Our haf's off to you Mr. Sullivan because after all YOU are one of the people who started this

"QUICK ENES: A British nusise paper, Meloy Maker, thinks the Beatles should be feted at Breixinghum Place ... Snahle Shaw calims her gimmick of warring on shows is not a gimmick at all — the just likes to sing bare-footed ... When the Beatler contract with EMI Records expires in about 18 months, rumor has it the boys will form an independent company... The Righteous Bros. are due in London April 19 to promote their new record, "Just Once In My Life."

SAW: Gordon Waller wearing four rings. What does this mean, Gordon? Looks suspiciously like a steal from that other guy! Puzzle of the week: What English group, who recently acquired a new lead singer, seems to be gutting a bit swell-headed? Turned down three seperate offers to tour America. Stated reason: The money wasn't good enough for them. Great way to make fans, boys!

Note to Joe Agnello, director of "Hollywood A Go Go": We'd like to see more of the performers and a lot less of the dancers. You have so many trick camera shots that we NEVER do get a clear picture of the guest artists!

Great Sound

Lesley Gore has come up with a great sound in "All of My Life". She says she "Loves California" and is trying to talk her parents into moving out here. Lesley's plans for this summer are not definite yet, but she is considering doing either a summer replacement for a TV show, a movie, or a cross-country tour.

Remember Soupy Sales? Well, he's back on the scene with new record called "The Mouse." Soupy is now New York based, where he has completely captured the skyscraper crowd. We're glad for Soupy, but we wish he was hurling his pies back in L.A.

Teens Here

The Nashville Teens have made it hack to the U.S. for about a three week visit. As you probably honv, the boys hast American tour was cancelled because of work permit trouble. The Teens were pretty upset about it, and we don't blame them because it was a LOUSY deal. But it is all straighteed out now (we hope). Anyway, a Teens, and we hope this time your with will NOT be cut short. Made'?

England's parale of the week: Where, oh where, are those pirrate radio stations getting their recorde' They are NOT recornized by the British government, and the recording companies SAY they do not deal with them either officially or undificially. Yet, the pirates manage to get ALL the records they want, and they aren't telling on their sources. So, for the time being, the mystery of the pirate stations remains a mystery.

Appears too many recording companies are vying for the services of Chad & Jeremy. The boys recently filed legal action in New York to void their contract with Ember Records. In the middle of the problem is Columbia Records, who were apparently under the impression that THEY had Chad & Jeremy entirely to themselves. Must be terrible to be so popular!

Well, that's all for this week-Bye now.
